

Year 5 French

Due to unforeseen circumstances, the 2020 Olympic Games scheduled to take place in Tokyo were postponed for the first time ever.

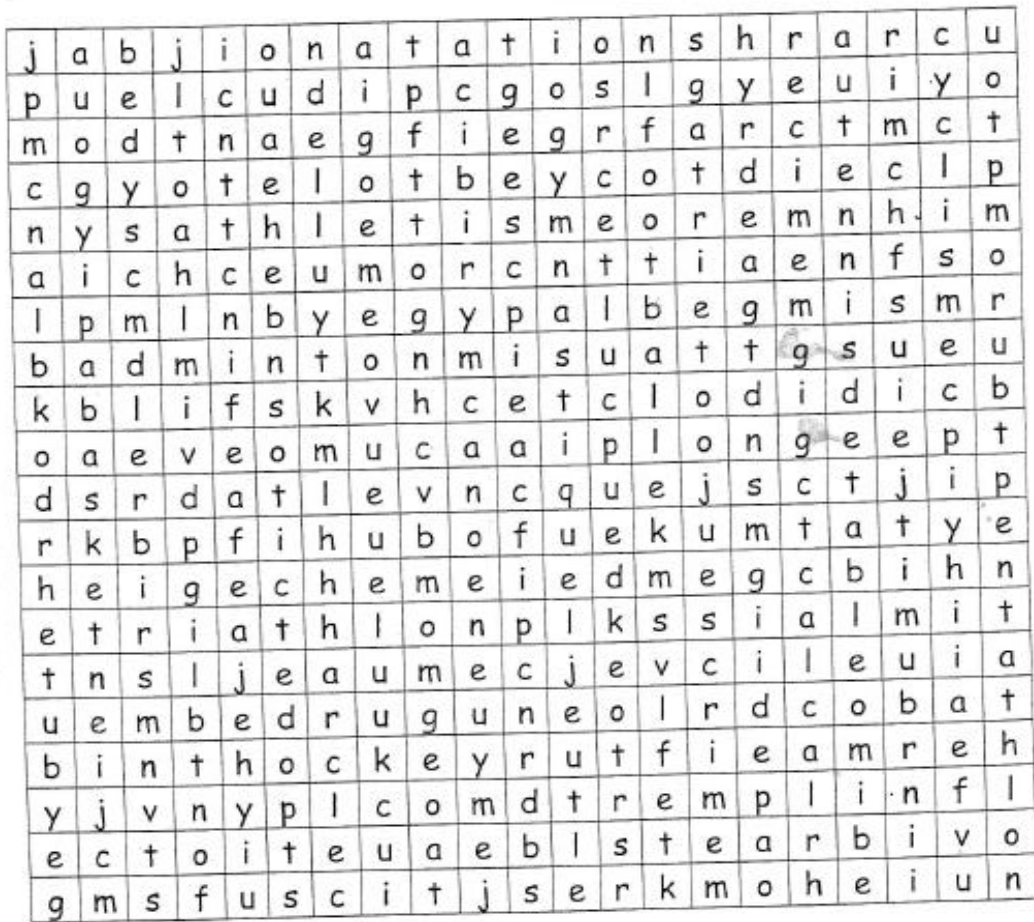

The father of the modern Olympic movement is a French man called Pierre de Coubertin. Destined for the military or the law, Coubertin discovered his life's work in Rugby, England and set out on a quest to give French children what British students already had: sport in education. At the 1889 Paris Universal Exposition which attracted 32 million people to marvel at the new Eiffel Tower, he organised the world's first congress on physical education and scholar competitions. In 1894, 2,000 people rose in acclamation of his proposal to revive the Olympic Games. His motto was "L'important c'est de participer": "the important thing is to take part".
